COOP MONTH 2017

By: Paul Philip C. Tolentino

October of every year is a celebration of the Cooperative Month in the Philippines pursuant to the Presidential Proclamation 493, Series of 2003. The 2017 Cooperative Month's Theme is "Cooperatives: Empowering the Poor and the Vulnerable Towards Job Creation and Poverty Eradication". This speaks well of the cooperatives' strong involvement in advancing the UN's Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). It brings to the fore how cooperatives are advancing poverty eradication, food security, and ecological integrity through the practice of the universally-accepted and time-honored cooperative principles.

This month-long celebration is traditionally recognized and participated in by the Cooperatives and their members, the government sector, the non-government organizations and the entire cooperative movement by way of conducting and joining the activities that promote cooperativism, and its impact to social and economic development. In the Province of Antique, the 2017 Coop Month was celebrated in the town of Sibalom, home of the Rafflesia Speciosa. The Barbaza Multi-Purpose Cooperative, together with other cooperatives in Antique, marched in Sibalom Gymnasium. With hundreds of participants in the said event, the venue is filled with peach clad cooperators. Before the program proper, there were several activities that were held such as: Blood Letting Activity in partnership with the Philippine Red Cross and Tree Planting. A Eucharistic Mass is held at the Santa Rita de Cascia Parish Church after the preliminary activities.

The program proper started with an opening prayer, singing of the National Anthem, followed by reciting the Cooperative Pledge and singing of the Provincial Theme Song and the Cooperative Hymn. A welcome remarks is given by Hon. Joel P. Occeña, municipal mayor of Sibalom, and followed by an opening remarks by Mr. Felimon M. Espares, chairman of the Provincial Cooperative Development Council of Antique and solidarity messages by Hon. Rhodora J. Cadio and Hon. Edgar D. Denosta, Governor and Vice Governor of the Province of Antique, respectively. Hon. Gadwin E. Handumon, a Sectoral Representative of the Cooperative Sector National Anti-Poverty Commission shared his part as the keynote speaker during the program. One significant part of the program was the awarding of the Regional Cooperative Development Council (RCDC) to the Province of Antique as the Cooperative Capital of Western Visayas. It was a glorious recognition received by the Province of Antique, an award that proves that Cooperatives played a substantial part in the province's economic development. The program ended with a talent search called "Coop Got Talent" from participating cooperatives in clusters.

EDITORIAL: TRAIN, WHAT DOES IT CHANGE?

By Paul Philip Tolentino

This is the question running in our mind after President Rodrigo Duterte signed into law the reform package on December 19, 2017 along with the P3.767-trillion 2018 annual budget.

The reform or Tax Reform Acceleration and Inclusion (TRAIN/ Republic Act 10963) law exempts from paying taxes the first P250,000.00 annual taxable income, meaning those earning P21,000.00 a month would no longer need to pay income taxes. It also raises the tax exemption for 13th Month Pay and other benefits to P90,000.00.

However, to compensate for loss of revenue from income taxes, Filipinos will need to pay excise tax on sweetened beverage, and higher excise taxes on petroleum, automobile, tobacco, mining and coal.

TRAIN is the first package of the Duterte administration's Comprehensive Tax Reform Program (CTRP). Just recently, Labor Groups from different sectors said that TRAIN will have an adverse effect to Filipinos who are members of informal economy and will push for wider and deeper poverty-related problems if not addressed. Informal economy is the part of an economy that is neither taxed, nor monitored by the government.

The group is referring to vendors, fisher folks, farmers, public utility vehicles and pedicab drivers, among others. The Department of Finance said that even non-taxpayers will benefit from the reform by way of more job opportunities, better infrastructure that will lower transport and distribution costs of goods, and improved services.

TAX REFORM FOR ACCELERATION AND INCLUSION (TRAIN) WHAT DOES IT CHANGE?

The question now is whether these personal gains will be enough to offset the effects of other changes TRAIN will introduce, such as higher excise taxes on fuel and coal. How much higher will power and transportation costs rise as a result? A critical part will be the administration's ability to deliver promptly on its promise that more than half of the P130 billion in additional tax revenues it expects to raise will pay for infrastructure. About one-third is supposed to expand social protection programs, like cash transfers for poor families, and the rest will be spent on modernizing the military. According to the Department of Finance, four more tax reform packages have been lined up. First, though, we'll have to see how TRAIN will affect household budgets and expenses. Some relief will be given down the road: a VAT exemption on some maintenance medicines will start in 2019, for example, and a similar exemption on mass housing projects two years after that. Whether or not the other TRAIN components get the push they need will depend on how well tax reforms gains balance its inevitable pains.

Barbaza MPC Member Testimonials

The Barbaza Multi-Purpose Cooperative has helped me in many ways. First, the cooperative, through its loan services has helped me during financial difficulties especially in my children's educational expenses. Second, the cooperative has taught me thriftiness, to value the worth of my labor and to ensure that it will be spent wisely with good purpose. As a coordinator, the cooperative gave me the chance to extend the privileges, benefits, protection and services they offer by encouraging others to become members too. Also, my experience as an area coordinator further developed my communication skills as well as my confidence. Lastly, I am happy and grateful to win the BMPC Search for Miss Coordinator 2017 because I was able to help people through an outreach activity by sharing proceeds (rice, groceries and plastic wares) to indigent families in these following barangays: Paningayan, Magsaysay and Flores in the town of Culasi.

BMPCIANs provides an opportunity to celebrate all the successes of the Cooperative and provide news about our Coop. It is designed to inform members and also non-members about the achievements and the relevant opportunities at Barbaza Multi-Purpose Cooperative. The publication keeps people well-informed and up to date with the latest events. It is another important element in establishing strong member-cooperative relations.
